I have always been a passionate advocate for family and individual rights. My experience in Family and Labor Law has enhanced my belief that in a modern society everyone has the right to live and work without fear of being harmed by known or preventable risks, such as asbestos. The fact that people are losing their health, financial well-being, and more importantly loved ones to something that could be avoided by routine testing and maintenance in this present time baffles me.

My goal is to give those who have been injured and neglected a voice to finally seek the justice they deserve. I take pride in my interpersonal skills and value the time spent with each individual client, listening to their personal story.

“We aren’t fighting just to fight, we are advocating for what’s right.”
